

RESERVE BOARD TO AID TREASURY TO HALT BOND TUMBLE

Announce Plan to Engage in Heavy Buying Program To Hold Prices

GIVE TWO REASONS

Board Will Reduce Surplus Funds in Bank Vaults to $500,000,000

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Apr. 5.—The Federal Reserve Board joined with the Treasury today in an emergency move to halt tumbling government bond prices and its more than abundant supply of bank credit for industrial expansion.

The Board's open market committee announced it would engage in a heavy buying program to steady the government bond market. The committee agreed to two major causes for the current heavy selling of government obligations, which are:

1.—The fear prevailing in financial circles that "easy" money conditions shortly will terminate and

2.—The desire of banks to obtain additional cash to meet the increase in reserve requirements would become effective May 1.

By increasing reserve requirements—raising the amount of banks holding as reserve against deposits—the Board on May 1, will have reduced surplus funds in bank vaults to $500,000,000. At present, these excess reserves total $1,400,000,000.

BRISTOL "GYM" TEAM PLACES THIRD IN MEET

Severely Handicapped by Not Having Any Entrants On the Rings

SCORE TOTAL OF 408.3

(By Louis Tomlinson)

STATE COLLEGE, Apr. 5.—Severely handicapped without an entrant on the rings, Bristol High's gymnastic team under the very efficient direction of Coach Bill Dougherty, again was well up in the money in the second annual P. I. A. A. gymnastic title meet here Saturday. The local aggregation finished as high as 3rd which, in considering that the only two schools that scored better than they did not only had more entrants in the meet, but also had two or more on every piece.

Despite the fact that the Cardinals scored more points in the final total column, they did much better this year, in view of the fact they had more entrants last year and had at least two on each piece. In 1936 the Red and Gray outfit scored 461 whereas this year they came out with a 408.3 score or 60.7 points better than this year. However, with two entrants on the rings they would have no doubt passed that total easily.

On several of the events the scoring was so close that as little as one-tenth of a point separated a medal winner from just another entrant or from

"The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" showing Monday and Tuesday at the Grand Theatre, brings together for the first time the three stars who, singly, have recently contributed to the screen three of the year's most successful and outstanding pictures.

Joan Crawford, direct from "The Gorgeous Hussy"; William Powell, from "After the Thin Man"; Robert Montgomery, whose "Piccadilly Jim" still remains one of the high spots of 1936 screen entertainment.

To Miss Crawford falls the title role of the lovely American woman in whose hands gullible English socialites become easy victims of a plot to trick them out of a fortune in jewels.

William Powell, as Mrs. Cheyney's butler, Charles, is revealed as the brains of the group of international thieves, but a lovable crook who makes unusual sacrifices to protect the good name of the woman he adores.

Montgomery appears as romantic young Lord Dilling who uncovers the plot to fleece his British friends and who learns the true character of Mrs. Cheyney when she chooses exposure as a thief rather than submit to his amorous advances.

FAVORITE BABY HEADQUARTERS EXPERIENCE LANDSLIDE OF VOTES FOR THE TINY CANDIDATES

So great was the number of votes cast in The Favorite Baby Election last week that it was impossible to ascertain the winner of the $25 special prize offered for the week before going to press with today's issue of The Courier; however, the winner's name will appear tomorrow, along with the new standings of the many beautiful candidates still in the race.

The election office of The Courier has been taxed to the limit in a sincere effort to tabulate last week's votes, and although extra help has been hired to meet the occasion, employees will be forced to work late tonight in order that the correct standings may be published tomorrow.

With but one week remaining in which to obtain the greatest value for votes in THE FAVORITE BABY ELECTION, parents and friends of 70 some odd little candidates are leaving no stone unturned in their earnest quest for votes—and honors.

Interest in the community affair has grown amazingly in the past week, and nearly everyone is determined to make the remainder of the week mean something worthwhile in votes.

Next Saturday night will see the end of the FOUR for one vote schedule, and it is not improbable that the favorite will actually secure enough votes the coming week to clinch the huge silver cup, title of "Favorite" and the first prize of $500 in cash.

Numerous "executive committee" meetings are being held every day to further the candidacy of one or another favorite. Like the old fashioned campaigns, too, there has been no lack of "stump" speeches in behalf of individual campaigners.

And that's as it should be. The more interest reflected in the election, the greater the honor of winning the coveted crown, an educational fund, a magnificent silver loving cup and the unassailable honor of becoming champion of all this community's babyland.

This story is short—purposely—so the fact that time, too, is short will be brought home more forcibly to those who will realize its importance in this great baby event.

FORMER SHIPYARD FOLKS ENJOY GALA REUNION

Dinner-Dance Held On Roof-Garden of Stacy-Trent Hotel

150 ATTEND THE AFFAIR

TRENTON, N. J., Apr. 5.—With decorations, songs and stories reminiscent of shipyard days, more than 150 men and women who in years past were employed by the now disbanded Merchant Shipbuilding Corporation and Emergency Fleet Corporation, gathered in reunion at a dinner-dance on the roof-garden of the Stacy-Trent Hotel, Saturday evening.

Carried back 20 years to the days when they worked together in a gigantic industry located on the Delaware River at Bristol, Pa., the group had a thoroughly enjoyable evening.

Five states were represented as well as the District of Columbia, and many came from each of these states for Saturday evening's enjoyable function.

James R. Wells served in the capacity of toastmaster; and addresses were made by the following: Frank Whittam, Langhorne; C. J. Mack, Washington, D. C.; Joseph Delaney, Chicago, Ill.; Captain Edward Horner, Woodbury, N. J.; Joseph Donohue, Jenkintown; Harry White, Philadelphia; and D. E. Ellenberger.

Throughout the evening stories of shipyard days were exchanged, and those who had not met for years had a gala reunion.

Decorations for the event recalled shipyard days, with shipyard papers, employees' buttons, etc., being used in the decorative scheme. At the speakers' table a centerpiece was formed of flowers in the shape of a ship. Others attending were grouped at small tables. Favors were miniature ships.

Group singing of war-time songs was indulged in, and specialty numbers were given by "Eddie and Ott," vocalists and instrumentalists. Music was provided by the Cavalier Orchestra.

By unanimous vote the affair is to be an annual one.

The menu included: Fruit cup, mock turtle soup, turkey, dressing, peas, candied sweet potatoes, cranberry sauce, salad, ice cream, fancy cakes, coffee.

RED-HAIRED BEAUTY

Proving that actual size has nothing whatever to do with ability to garner votes, Nancy, happy little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Ford, 218 Jackson street, Bristol, herewith makes her pictorial bow for your consideration when you cast votes for a favorite. She has lovely blue eyes, and if only the presses of The Courier were equipped with color, you would see her hair is a beautiful red. The lovely little lady is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ford, of Maple Beach, and Mrs. Anna Ricketts, who lives next door to Nancy, as does her great grandmother, Mrs. D. J. Sommerfeld. Other great grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Swank, 649 Pine street, Bristol. Hats off to this tiny nominee, who promises to give a good account of herself between now and the end of the election.

HISTORIC REUNION

When a Viking met an Eskimo up North, 600 or 700 or more years ago, it really was a reunion of two races of men who had left Central Asia thousands of years earlier in opposite directions and had been migrating around the world at a leisurely pace ever since. So leisurely was the pace that the long-separated cousins had developed radically different racial characteristics before they met again—and accordingly they failed to recognize any family resemblance.

At least, that is the way Dr. Henry B. Collins of the Smithsonian Institution figures it out. Accepting the scientists' thesis, tentatively placing the cradle of man somewhere in what is now China or India, Dr. Collins, an archeologist, points out that successive waves of migration moved out from that point, eastward and westward. He believes the first meeting between an eastward wave and a westward wave took place in comparatively modern times when Viking colonists, descendants of Leif Ericson's adventurers, met some Eskimos in the western part of Greenland in the thirteenth or fourteenth century.

Evidence of this meeting has been found in the form of Viking implements on the sites of Eskimo settlements. The "Thule Eskimos," so called because of their contact with Viking civilization, later abandoned Greenland and moved back across Canada. Dr. Collins holds, leaving in their path evidence of a Viking-Eskimo culture which has confused scientists for years.

Dr. Collins' explanation may serve to reconcile some of the conflicting theories about just how far the Vikings penetrated the North American continent. Assuming that the Eskimos and Indians carried their back-tracking as far as their remote ancestors' abodes in Siberia, it accounts for folk lore and other cultural changes there, quite distinct from those of the races which had remained in Asia without any North American exploring. But the most interesting part of Dr. Collins' hypothesis is that reunion in Greenland between the tall, fair Vikings and the squat, swarthy Eskimos who never dreamed that their respective and respected ancestors had come from the same old home town in Central Asia.

YES, IT'S A SMALL WORLD

A dispatch describing the successful conclusion of the Pan-American Airways' path-finding flight to Kingman's Reef referred to this mid-Pacific islet as a place "where no airplane had been before."

That in itself summarizes this bold commercial exploit as well as anything that might be written. The supply of places where no airplane has been before becomes so limited as to warrant mention in a news-dispatch when one infrequently is encountered.

The world, thanks to the airplane, truly is a small world after all, and getting smaller right along.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Sept. 30, 1875. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

On Monday of last week, a young man from Philadelphia, a trader through this county, left his horse at Mr. Closson's stable at Hivery. Soon after being tied in the stable, it was discovered his leg was broken. From appearances it is supposed that in using his hind foot to scratch his head, the shoe caught in the head-halter, and thus he was thrown in the stall, and broke his leg. There seems to have been an unwarrantable delay in effort to have the animal relieved of its suffering, as it was not until Wednesday afternoon—fully two days after the accident—that information was lodged with one of our agents of the S. P. C. A., who immediately attended the case. The owner of the horse could not be found, and Agent Conly had the horse humanely killed, procured a warrant for the arrest of the owner, and on Thursday, on the arrival of the steamboat "Warner" he was arrested, and taken before Squire Lyndall to recover expenses of dispatching and removing the animal.

The Berks County was $2,000 short this year in its receipts.

Lewis M. Wharton, Esq., who left home a few weeks ago to join his wife who was on a visit to their daughter at Alton, Illinois, died at that place on Sunday last of typhoid fever. Squire Wharton was one who labored truly to carry out the injunction "Be ye kindly affectioned one toward another." Occupying among us for many years the office of justice of the peace, his kindly counsel has averted many a threatened lawsuit. For almost 20 years he has officiated as secretary of the Odd Fellows' and Masonic Lodges at this place, and a numerous concourse of his brethren were gathered together yesterday to pay the last tribute of respect to his remains. The body arrived in the afternoon, and was conveyed to its resting place in the Friends burying ground.

George Stahr, who resides near Upper Black Eddy, had two of his cows poisoned on the 12th instant. Paris Green, mixed with salt, was placed by some scoundrel within the enclosure where the cows were pastured. Mr. Stahr offers $100 reward for the information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the parties who were guilty of the crime.

On Wednesday of last week, Lewis Woolman, storekeeper at canal lock No. 3, shot a large crane while out gunning, breaking its wing. While endeavoring to secure the bird it drew back its head and gave him a severe thrust, the bill entering the upper portion of the eyeball and inflicting a severe gash in his cheek.

The semi-annual election, held at Hopkins Lodge, No. 87, I. O. O. F., last evening, resulted in the choice of the following officers: N. G. George C. Gillingham; V. G. Abram R. Townsend; secretary, Thomas B. Douglass; assistant secretary, James W. Martin; representative to Grand Lodge, William Kinsey.

The Newtown Cornet Band have had manufactured for them a handsome wagon, costing $350. It arrived in Newtown yesterday.

Samuel Pike has removed to his new residence on Radcliffe street.

ings were much impressed by the exhibits of posters executed by students, subject matter being humane education, and also some advertising the council meeting. Prizes for such were won by pupils from the seventh and eighth grades at Warminster schools.

During the afternoon a pin oak tree was planted on the school grounds, here, and dedicated to the founders of the National Council of Parents and Teachers. Albert C. Rutter, Perkase, assistant superintendent of the Bucks County Schools, presented the tree from the county council to the local school, the same being accepted by principal Carver for the school. Appropriate exercises during the dedication were participated in by pupils of the local sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

Founders' Day ceremony was presented by Langhorne P. T. A., with other members of the council assisting. The local glee club gave musical numbers during the ceremony.

Reports of outstanding achievements by 18 of the 23 associations in the council were given during Saturday's sessions. Two new associations have affiliated, Edgely and Lower Makefield Township.

Mr. Rutter, assistant superintendent, during the day also discussed the topic. During the morning hours an open forum occurred, the subject revolving about the part the home and school play in education of a child.

The invocation at the opening of the day was given by Dr. Charles Freeman, pastor of Salem Reformed Church, Doylestown.

Programs for the affair were most attractive, and were made by members of the staff of the office of superintendent Hoffman at Doylestown. A platter luncheon was served; and the officers, executive board members and guest speakers were entertained at luncheon by the hostess association.

Discussion occurred as to possibility of arranging a banquet and picnic to mark the 10th anniversary of the council next Fall.

"Rich Cargoes" by Henry C. Rowland

SYNOPSIS

Enroute from Yokohama to San Francisco, Sandy Crewe, young scientist who recently amassed a fortune from the discovery of a silk-stocking preserver, meets elderly Colonel Carlton, wealthy eccentric. The Colonel plans to retire to his island in the Bahamas. Due to stress of business, Sandy declines the Colonel's invitation to visit him, and thereby offends the old man. Just before the steamer lands, Sandy falls in love with a picture of the Colonel's niece and vainly asks the Colonel to re-invite him. Undaunted by the refusal, Sandy arrives at the Bahamas two months later for what he terms "a personal mission of apology for an error in etiquette," but in reality to meet Carlton's lovely niece, Isobel. While the Colonel, Isobel and Sandy are talking a strange vessel looms on the horizon. Fearing it may be someone out of his adventurous past seeking revenge, the Colonel sends for a machine gun.

The Bahaman servant who bore the classic Colonial name of Sambo stalked out with the latest model of police machine gun that he laid on the table beside his master.

Isobel glanced at it and said: "Get the Springfield Sporter and a 30-40, Sambo." She looked at Sandy. "We might as well be in on this."

"Quite so, if that's the sort of wooden horse the Colonel seems to think."

The big lighter grounded. Down on the beach the swarm of blacks were looking back to the house as if for orders. Receiving none they now obeyed those of what appeared to be the captain of the lighter, a lanky Conch blower in a ten cent straw hat, and blue jean overalls. Splashing out waist deep they carried two lines ashore, led them out at a wide angle and made fast the ends to some outcrops of coral rock that jutted through the sand. The tug boat maintained the barge in its position, engines turning slowly.

Then the craft secured with its shelving scow bow against the beach, another order was given. The crowd tailed on to the landings of an enormous gangway on the fore deck. It was a ponderous affair with truss-frame railing some eight or ten feet wide like the gang-plank of a passenger steamer but wider and heavier and shorter. The end of this they dragged out on to the beach. The inbound end was secured by a few turns round heavy bits.

"My word," Sandy breathed, "that looks like landing field pieces, Colonel."

Throughout this operation, the old campaigner had not budged. His white bushy eyebrows merely rolled down a little to draw a horizontal line, a sort of pent-house beneath which his bright blue eyes peered out intently. Glancing at Isobel, Sandy observed her own eyes to be no less intent. They were of a very striking tint, a light grayish purple if such a color there be, at any rate a gray that has some violet but no green. Perhaps mauve gray would describe them better though at this moment an intense curiosity made them darker, from pupil dilation.

The square house on the barge had at its forward end two large doors like a garage. These now swung open, but with the sun a little beyond the craft the shadow was so intense as to make the black interior invisible.

But now a sort of rumbling came from within. Then the Colonel gave something between a gurgle and a snort as out into the sunshine there projected what at first sight appeared to be a huge serpent. Followed a vast bulk, two long white gleaming tusks on which were gold bands with pendant gilded chains, big waving fans of ears, the head, and then the shoulders of a huge elephant in full comparison of state.

A scarlet triangle of satin went over the head fringed with gold and pointed with a long tassel that hung at the root of the trunk.

At sight of this prodigy a yell of terror burst from the helpers on the beach who surged with a retrograde motion that carried them a number of yards back. Then held by amazement and an overwhelming curiosity they paused, pointing, magnificently in its blazing panorama. Then, as its sensitive trunk scented out the perfumed aroma of tropic shrubs and flowers distilled in sunshine, the huge bulk appeared to quiver, to dilate in a sort of ecstasy. Perhaps early memories were awakened, hereditary cravings aroused. The elephant paused, raised its trunk, its vast head and drew upward one forefoot.

Then a salvo of trumpeting burst out. They were like paeons of pure delight. They needed no interpretation. Even to the blacks who had never so much as heard of elephants it must have been apparent that this vast monster was rejoicing, bellowing forth its jubilation from an overflowing heart. An elephantine Te Deum Laudamus to be rid of its grey prison on the mainland, the insecure carapace of the last few hours and now deposited safely on firm sand in a mellow jibbering. A small man in white clothes and a fringe of red hair under a military kepi, with crossed gold braids, something like the head gear of a Continental officer took his place by the knee of the monster, urging it gently onward. Then without the slightest hesitation though gingerly the elephant moved forward, ears slowly fanning, sinuous trunk describing spirals, reached the head of the gangway, tested it first with trunk, then with one forefoot and as if assured of its solidity and impelled by the desire to be quit of that unstable means of transport it came ponderously down, moved out on to the hard sand the little keeper under one tusk and holding by a gilded chain.

A sort of wail of astonishment not unmixed with rapture, admiration, exaltation at the splendid spectacle went up from the black gang bachelors up the beach. In the shouting sunlight the great beast glowed out flood of warmest sunshine with the exotic perfumes of a torrid zone saturating the whole of its olfactory, the totality of its vast glad bulk.

There was a welling joyfulness in these full trumpeting, a vociferous expansion of the soul. The great beast poured out thanksgiving, and a sort of mirth. But the gladness of an elephant is a fearful thing to uninitiated ears. It was too much for the black spectators. They broke and scattered like flakes of soot in a sudden blast. The men howled, women screamed and pickaninnies shrielled. The crew of the tugboat roared with laughter, rocking over the bulwarks, and out aboard Sandy's yacht the crew yelled with passionate delight. Pandemonium possessed that erstwhile peaceful spot.

"I WANT TO KNOW ALL ABOUT THE PACKARD SIX"

THE COUPON AT THE RIGHT will bring you specific figures showing how easy the Packard Six is to purchase.

But—that's only half the story. We'd like to have the chance to answer all your questions about the Packard Six. Frankly, we believe it's the perfect personal car for women. And we've planned Ladies' Week to give you a special opportunity to see what a thrill it is to own and drive a Packard.

You'll be glad to know, too, that this new Packard gives you all the power and response of a 100-horsepower motor—yet has the thriftiness with gasoline for which six-cylinder motors are famous. Ask us to show you some actual figures on the car's low gasoline consumption. And because the Packard Six is so simple in design, it can be serviced very cheaply. This simplicity of design is important, for on the ordinary repair bill, perhaps 70% of the charge is for labor.

In fact, most service operations can be performed more quickly, with less labor hours, on a Packard Six than on the average car costing less—even cars celebrated for their low service costs.

These terms sound rather masculine, we know, but they're important to every motorist's pocketbook. So—take your first step toward Packard Six ownership, without obligation. Simply fill out and mail the coupon—then join us during Ladies' Week, April 5th to 17th.

CASTOR PUTS UP GOOD FIGHT AGAINST WALL

Philadelphia's finest fought Saturday evening at St. Nick Palace, New York, where the Middle Atlantic Champs fought New York's Golden Glove winners; Chet Castor, fighting for the first time in New York, fought none other than Joe Wall, New York 112-lb Metropolitan champ. Wall also holds the Golden Glove title and 112-lb Champ in New York.

Chet fought his way into the hearts of 8,000 fight fans who said that never was a fight so full of action, and toe-to-toe punching seen here in a long time.

The fight went three rounds, with Wall the winner. After the fight, Joe said he fought the best in the country, but never has he fought a guy with punch, nerve and boxing skill as he found in his bout with Chet. Wall went as far as to say that he was happy when the fight was over.

Chet's great showing was applauded for fully five minutes after the bout. Wall was greeted with cat-calls and boos after he left the ring. Wall, a colored lad, has a career to be proud of, having fought in Europe, Boston and Chicago. He holds decisions over the National A. A. U. champ, Jackie Wilson; Tom Forte, and Johnny Marcine.

Castor, on leaving the ring, was nearly ten minutes getting to his room, making friends with the crowd that wants him back again. Castor's bout was voted the best of the night. Chet is to fight Wall again on April 24th at the same club.

Chet's party consisted of Philadelphia boys, such as Graber, Woodland, Sornello, Padlo and Robinson. The boys came home with three wins and three losses.

first and second place or some other place among the competitors. Often the scores ended in a tie. In fact in looking over the scores on the various pieces a very unusual incident in regard to scoring between Bristol and Sewickley on the horizontal bar. Both schools qualified three entrants on that piece and strange as it may seem all three in exact order scored the identical score. Here is the way the two schools' scores read on that piece:

| Horizontal Bar | |
|----------------|----------------|
| Bristol 50.4 | Sewickley 50.4 |
| 47.4 | 47.4 |
| 49.5 | 49.5 |

The three local entrants on that piece were Doyle, Vandenberg, and DeLong but the Western team's representatives were not given.

And the 50.4 score was just 7 point out of third place and a medal. Third place was taken by an individual from Westinghouse with a final score of 51.1. Bristol also failed to place on the horse by the slim margin of 1.9 points. On the mats third and fourth places were separated by 3.7 points, but fourth and ninth places were separated by only 2.6 points showing the keen competition the tumbler were up against. Bristol's 22.5 was 1.9 out of third place on the Indian Clubs where first and second places were separated by 1 point.

It may also be noted among the final scores that this was the only piece in which Lancaster High entered—one entrant in the meet—and that individual came home with a first place award as a token for his ability on the mats. He was Lester Fiester who scored a final total of 62.9.

The title this year was again captured by Pottsville for the second consecutive time as they also took it last year in the first meet. However, they won by a slightly better score over their second place rival who happened to be Westinghouse of Pittsburgh in both instances. Last year the champs won by 51 points but this year they increased their margin to 70.4 over the same school.

The main reason for their victory may be attributed to the fact that they were able to sweep the ring event taking one-two-three positions for 175.4 points to Westinghouse's 92.6 in that event. Of course this was quite a distinction; it was also the only piece in which Bristol failed to qualify an entrant.

Pottsville came out with two individual winners and four other medal capturers, giving them the highest number of placers in the meet. At the same time it must be considered that they entered 13 in the meet but only qualified 11 last week. Their first placers were Zimmerman who scored high single total with an even 65 score on the high bar. The other winner was Fry who scored a 60.2 on the rings.

While the champions gained two individual winners, Westinghouse was not outdone in this respect by their superiors for they, too, came home with a pair of first place medals. Their winners were Angell with a 54.7 on the parallels which was the lowest winning score, and Cosgrove with an even 25 score on the Indian clubs. However, they could secure only two other medal winners.

Although they failed to take a first place, Bloomsburg came out with four medals, but the trouble with them was that they didn't enter enough contestants for they only had five in the whole meet—only one failing to bring a medal home. He was unfortunately on the rings where Pottsville took the situation in hand.

Khoury, of Fifth Avenue, captured the opening event, the horse, with a score of 60.5. Latrobe and Sewley each gained one place. No one individual was good enough to win two places on two pieces.

Schools came from far and near to compete in the meet—in fact they came from one extreme to the other. Erie Academy from the city on the far Northwest corner of the Keystone state on the shores of Lake Erie and Bristol in the extreme southeast corner of the state on the shores of the historic Delaware waterway. Other schools came from Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Williamsport, Sewickley and Ellwood City.

Although they failed to come home with any medals, though they tried hard enough in missing at least three by slightly more than one point, Bristol and Coach Dougherty deserve much credit for the fine showing they made in the state meet. They were the only representatives from Bucks County as last year, but they certainly carried the banner of this county high in placing way up to the number three spot amongst fourteen competing schools. As before mentioned this is an attribute to Coach Dougherty who undertook the coaching of this team on his own time and entirely on his own initiative when he first came here in 1932. At that time scarcely a handful of students reported for the first team. Now he has built it up to a major competitive sport since then in a few years and candidates report by the scores for a tryout on the team.

Of all the events, the closest was the Indian Clubs which was the last piece. In this event as stated before the winner and second place was the difference of exactly .1 of a point. Third place separated first by only .6 of a point, and fourth place by only .8 of a point. Only 4.7 separated fourth and 10th places, so close was the competition in this piece. An individual from Bristol and Sewickley tied with 22.1 in the event.

Although the meet was essentially an individual scholastic meet, the element of the East's best against that of the West and for the consecutive year the East not only possessed the champion, but also the best Regional squad. The East won by 113.9 points this year which was a big drop over the 513 margin held over them on 1936 or a drop of 399.1 points. Consequently the East holds a two-to-nothing advantage over their Western rivals in the two meets held so far.

Scoring was the same as usual. Three officials judged the meet, giving a maximum of 25 points each for an individual or a collective possible score of 75. This includes 10 points on a required exercise and 15 on an optional exercise on all pieces except the Indian Clubs in which there was only an optional exercise which was scored on a basis of ten points for each judge or 30 for the three of them.

One other incident came out of the competition and that is the fact which you may have already discovered by this time that the same schools that finished in the one-two-three order this year did likewise in 1936. Last year Pottsville won over Westinghouse by 51 points but increased it to 70.4 this year. Bristol again finished third. Comparative scores this and last year were as follows:

|--------------|------|-------|
| Pottsville | 532 | 632.2 |
| Westinghouse | 481 | 561.8 |
| Bristol | 461 | 498.3 |
